

manifest.

A reference for using the brand correctly across product, marketing, and packaging.

01 The brand

Tagline: Every unit, accounted for.

Supporting line: From the line to the shelf — track every product you make, every shipment you send, and every sale you record.

The name draws from the shipping manifest — the document listing every item in a shipment. The word also means "to make plainly visible." Both meanings are doing work: nothing is hidden, everything is on the record.

02 Logo system

Three marks, three jobs. Never compress, recolor, or recombine them.

manifest.

wordmark — primary

app icon — touchpoints

MANIFEST VERIFIED

stamp — verified shipments

03 Color

A small, restrained palette inspired by ledger paper and ink. Signal blue is the only place where color does the talking.

Ink

#0A0A0B

Primary text, wordmark

Signal

#185FA5

The dot, links, CTAs

Verified

#0F6E56

Confirmation states

Parchment

#F1EFE8

Card surfaces

Paper

#FAFAF7

Page background

Margin

#5F5E5A

Secondary text

04 Typography

display & body — Inter

Every unit, accounted for.

500 for headings, 400 for body. Tight letter-spacing on display sizes only.

mono — IBM Plex Mono

No 0001 · VERIFIED

Reserved for stamps, audit IDs, codes — anything that should feel "on the record."

05 Voice

Confident, specific, plainspoken. Manifest sounds like a person who's done the job, not someone selling it.

we say

"Crate #04A arrived at Acme Retail at 14:22."

"Reconcile sales against shipments."

"Three units unaccounted for in this batch."

we don't

"Your shipment has been successfully delivered!"

"Leverage real-time logistics intelligence."

"Some items may be missing."

06 Logo do's and don'ts

do

manifest.

dot stays Signal blue

don't manifest.

never recolor the word

do

flat fill, square corners

don't

never rotate or circle
it

Brand guidelines maintained by the Manifest team. Last updated: v1.0.